

Description 2

Draw two perpendicular lines. Draw a circle whose diameter is the line segment of endpoints their point of intersection and another point on one of the two lines. Draw another circle with a diameter twice as long, on the second line. Draw a line parallel to the first one and passing through the intersection of this circle and the second line. Draw a line passing through the intersections of these two circles.

Figure 2

